The month's challenge

Keep your top-three list for 14 days, and finish at least two of the three each day.

Week 1 Where does my time go?

Deen: The blessed morning

The Prophet ﷺ prayed that Allah bless his ummah in their early mornings (Abū Dāwūd, 2606; at-Tirmidhī, 1212). Starting the day with Fajr gives you hours that others waste.

Try it this week

Wake for Fajr on three days this week and use the quiet time after it for 10 minutes of study or Qur'an.

Educational Development: A time audit

You cannot manage what you do not measure. Most people lose hours to small things they never notice.

Try it this week

Write down what you do each hour for one full day. Circle the biggest time-waster.

Skills: Calendars and reminders

A phone calendar with reminders is a free assistant. Set the time, the place and an alert before it starts.

Try it this week

Add your sessions and one deadline to your phone calendar with a reminder.

My notes and questions

Personal Development: Important or urgent?

Urgent things shout; important things build your future. Put your effort first into what is important, even when it is quiet.

Try it this week

Sort your tasks this week into four boxes: urgent and important, important only, urgent only, neither.

My notes and questions

Week 2 Planning your days

Deen: Fajr step by step

Waking for Fajr is a skill. Sleep early, set two alarms, place the alarm away from the bed, and make wuḍūʾ straight away.

Try it this week

Choose your bedtime tonight, and prepare your clothes, alarm and prayer place before you sleep.

My notes and questions

.....

.....

Educational Development: Study in blocks

The Pomodoro method uses 25 minutes of full focus, then a 5-minute break. After four rounds, take a longer rest.

Try it this week

Do two Pomodoro rounds on your hardest subject with your phone out of reach.

My notes and questions

.....

.....

Week 2: Planning your days (continued)

Skills: The top three

A long to-do list becomes a source of stress. Each morning choose the three tasks that matter most and finish them first.

Try it this week

Write your top three tasks for tomorrow tonight, in order. Tick them as you finish.

My notes and questions

.....

.....

Personal Development: Saying no politely

Every yes to something is a no to something else. You can decline kindly without long explanations or guilt.

Try it this week

Practise a polite “no” sentence aloud: “Thank you, I can’t today because …”.

My notes and questions

.....

.....

.....

Week 3 Beating procrastination

Deen: Effort and trust

A man asked whether to leave his camel untied and trust in Allah. The Prophet ﷺ said: tie it, and then trust in Allah (at-Tirmidhī, 2517). Trust is not a reason to delay.

Try it this week

Pick one task you have been avoiding. Do the first step, then make a du'ā for ease.

My notes and questions

.....

.....

.....

Educational Development: Start small

The hardest part is starting. Promise yourself only two minutes. Once you begin, you often continue.

Try it this week

Use the two-minute start on a task you dread. Note how long you actually worked.

My notes and questions

.....

.....

.....

Skills: Break big tasks down

A big project feels heavy because it is one lump. List the small steps, give each a date, and do the first one today.

Try it this week

Take one big task and split it into five steps with dates.

My notes and questions

Personal Development: An accountability partner

Telling someone your plan makes you more likely to keep it. Choose a friend who will ask you for the result.

Try it this week

Tell one person what you will finish this week and ask them to check on you on Friday.

My notes and questions

Week 4 Rhythm and rest

Deen: Remembrance through the day

The adhkār of the morning, evening and after prayer give the day a rhythm and protect the heart from forgetfulness.

Try it this week

Add the morning and evening adhkār to your routine for the last seven days of the month.

My notes and questions

.....

.....

.....

Educational Development: Spaced revision

Reviewing a topic after one day, one week and one month fixes it in memory far better than cramming.

Try it this week

Choose one topic and put three review dates in your calendar: tomorrow, next week and next month.

My notes and questions

.....

.....

.....

Week 4: Rhythm and rest (continued)

Skills: The weekly review

Ten minutes each Sunday to look at what you did, what you missed and what is next will keep you on track all month.

Try it this week

Do a weekly review this Sunday: what finished, what carried over, what next.

My notes and questions

.....

.....

.....

Personal Development: Rest is part of discipline

The Prophet ﷺ said your body has a right over you (al-Bukhārī, 1968). Sleep, breaks and free time are not laziness; they make hard work possible.

Try it this week

Plan one real rest block this week with no screens and keep it as firmly as a lesson.

A page for parents

Help your teenager keep a fixed bedtime and a fixed study time. Avoid last-minute demands on their evenings, and notice effort in planning, not only results.

- What the monthly report shows. Your teenager's facilitator sends a report each month with attendance, a rating for each of the four pillars, assignments handed in and a personal note.
- Three questions to ask this month. What did you learn that surprised you? Which session helped you most, and why? What is one thing I can do to support you?
- How to help. A calm place and time to study, early nights, and your interest. Praise effort and honesty more than marks.
