Month 9: Focus in a Digital World

Your phone is a powerful tool and a powerful distraction. This month you take back your attention, stay safe online and learn to create, not just consume.

The month's challenge

A 7-day reset: no phone at meals, none in the first hour after waking, and none in bed.

Week 1 Attention

Deen: Khushūʿ and distraction

Success belongs to the believers who are humble in their prayer (al-Muʾminūn 23:1–2). A mind used to constant scrolling finds stillness hard, so train it.

Try it this week

Put your phone on silent in another room when you pray this week and note your focus.

My notes and questions

Educational Development: Deep work

Deep work means one task, no switching, for a set time. Switching between tasks makes everything slower and worse.

Try it this week

Do two 30-minute blocks on one task with notifications off.

My notes and questions

Skills: Set up your phone

Turn off non-essential notifications, set app limits and move social media off the home screen.

Try it this week

Change three phone settings today to reduce distractions.

.....

Personal Development: Designed to hook you

Many apps are built to keep you scrolling with likes, streaks and endless feeds. Knowing the trick weakens it.

Try it this week

Check your screen-time report and name the app that takes the most time and why.

Week 2 Staying safe online

Deen: Guarding the gaze and heart

Allah tells the believers to lower their gaze and guard themselves (an-Nūr 24:30). Online this means avoiding what you know harms your heart, and leaving at once when something bad appears.

Try it this week

Write your own rules for what you will and will not watch and share them with a parent.

My notes and questions

.....

.....

Educational Development: Spotting fake news

Before you believe or share, check the source, the date and whether reliable outlets report the same thing.

Try it this week

Check two stories you have seen online using three questions: who, when, who else says so?

My notes and questions

.....

.....

.....

Skills: Privacy and passwords

Use long, different passwords, turn on two-step verification and never share personal details or one-time codes with anyone.

Try it this week

Change one weak password and turn on two-step verification on one account.

My notes and questions

.....

.....

.....

Personal Development: Your digital footprint

What you post can stay forever and can be seen by future teachers and employers. Post as if your parents and the Day of Judgement were watching.

Try it this week

Review your public posts and delete anything you would not want read aloud.

Week 3 Using technology well

Deen: A good deed that continues

The Prophet ﷺ said that whoever guides to good has a reward like the one who does it (Muslim 1893). Sharing beneficial knowledge online can be a lasting charity.

Try it this week

Share one beneficial reminder this week, after checking that it is authentic.

My notes and questions

.....

.....

.....

Educational Development: Using AI honestly

AI tools can help you understand, but copying their output is cheating yourself. Use them to explain, quiz and check, and always do the thinking.

Try it this week

Ask an AI tool to explain a topic you are studying, then close it and explain it back in your own words.

My notes and questions

.....

.....

.....

Skills: Writing a clear message

A good message has a subject, a clear request, and a polite close. Short is better.

Try it this week

Write an email or message to a teacher asking for help, following that structure.

My notes and questions

Personal Development: Limits and accountability

Limits work best when someone knows about them. Tell a parent or friend your daily screen goal and report back.

Try it this week

Set a daily screen limit, tell one person and check in at the end of the week.

My notes and questions

Week 4 Create, don’t only consume

Deen: Use your skills for good

Skills are a trust. A teenager who can design, write or code can use them to serve the deen and the community.

Try it this week

Think of one skill you have and one beneficial thing you could make with it.

My notes and questions

Educational Development: Learn something new online

Free courses and videos let you learn almost anything, but only if you finish and practise.

Try it this week

Choose a short course or tutorial and complete one lesson a day for a week.

My notes and questions

Skills: Make something

Making a poster, a one-page document or a short slideshow turns knowledge into a product you can share.

Try it this week

Make a one-page poster or document on a topic from this month.

My notes and questions

Personal Development: Real-life friendships

Online contact cannot replace face-to-face friendship. Make time for people in person each week.

Try it this week

Plan one screen-free meeting with a friend or family this week.

A page for parents

Agree on family phone rules together and follow them yourself. Know the apps your teenager uses, keep devices out of bedrooms at night, and make it easy for them to tell you when something online upsets them.

- What the monthly report shows. Your teenager's facilitator sends a report each month with attendance, a rating for each of the four pillars, assignments handed in and a personal note.
- Three questions to ask this month. What did you learn that surprised you? Which session helped you most, and why? What is one thing I can do to support you?
- How to help. A calm place and time to study, early nights, and your interest. Praise effort and honesty more than marks.
